WHAT GERRITT SMITH THINKS. Mr. Gerritt Smith has written and published a letter to Herschel V. Johnson, the conclusion of which is in a tone which arrests attention. We quote:

Only give us this peace for which I plead, and all danger of our cheating our creditors will be past. Let it, however, never be forgotten that this is a peace, in the making of which neither party must claim that itself is the saint and the other the sinner; but in the making of which both must be so penitent and honest as to confess themselves sinners, and forbear from a self righteous and insulting attitude towards each other. Having this peace, in which North and South shall be lovingly and lastingly linked together, there will no longer be fears of another breach between them; and, therefore, no longer doubts of our national credit and threats of repudiation .-Under the reign of such a peace the North and South, both prosperous, would, with strong and united arms, uphold the government and its credit. Thus, through the consequent and continued approximation of currency to gold, and the easy terms on which the government could then borrow, our national debt would, in a very few years, be reduced to one-half its present amount. What can make it impossible for our nation, with its unequalled resources, to borrow at four and even less than four per cent? Nothing but this madly-prolonged war between the North and the South. Nothing but the lack of this true peace between them. Perhaps the impeaching of the President will be the first work of Congress. But that measure, whatever its merits, would neither bring peace nor supersede the need of it.work. It Congress should begin its next session with voting some fifty or a hundred millions to the war impoverished South-and especially if it should assign, as one of the reasons for it, that the North as well as the South was guilty of the war-peace, true and enduring, would be sure to follow this most profitable of all investments. For then the South, convinced of our honesty and fraternal spirit, would have just that conviction which is necessary to win her heart and bring her into such

I need say no more. I have now written another of these papers for my writing of which statesmen laugh at me. For statesmen will have it, that, in the province of statesmanship, there is no room for the play of the heart-no room for aught but the cold, cunning, calculating intellect. They will have it that even the making of peace should be in no degree heartwork, but exclusively head work. I have often thought how happy it had been for our afflicted country if our statesmen, both Northern and Southern, had been so kind as to take themselves out of it for the first six months after the fighting ceased in the spring of 1865. This great hindrance to it being thereby removed, a peace between the North and South and a blessed one, too-would have become far more probable. It is not the skill of statesmanship that is needed to make peace between the North and South, but simply a sense of justice and the mutual forgiveness of mutually offending brethren. I am, dear sir, very respectfully, GERRITT SMITH.

EXPENDITURES FOR SOUTHERN RELIEF.-The law of the last Congress to relieve the suffering in the South was signed by the President on the 30th of last March, and orders to cease operations thereunder were issued by the bureau on the 26th of August. Relief was therefore offered to the people of the South, without regard to color, race or sex, for a periol of about five months. The greater part of the reports of the agents are in. The distribution of funds to various States was in round figures as follows: Virginia, $12,350; North Carolina, $32,500; South Carolina, $104,700; Georgia, $125,100; Alabama, $86,900; Plorida, $1,000; Mississippi $35,000; Louisiana, $21,100; Tennessee, $10,000, and Arkansas, $12,000, making a total of about $441,650. At the last reports small portions of this money were yet on hand, but it is believed that every dollar of it will be required to settle the outstanding bills. The various reports lead to the conclusion that between seventy-five and 109, Prince street, Alexandria W. H. MARBURY, eighty thousand different persons were relieved, some of whom were supported for weeks, and others probably for months. More than half of these persons were whites. The supplies furnished were mainly corn and pork; the returns made to the bureau, with a moderate estimate for the few districts not yet in, give an aggregate of about 850,000 pounds of pork and 120,000 bushels of corn.

QUAKER BRIDAL INNOVATION. -The Society of Friends in England have relaxed their Jounger members of the society avail themselves of the liberty thus conferred on them. In a recent wedding at the Friends' Meeting turers in the country, and will be sold at the llouse in Bristol, the bride, a Miss Rake, wore a dress of white corded silk, a fashionable bon-het, mainly composed of orange blossoms, and a long veil of tulle, edged with pearl. The five bridesmaids were dresses of white grenadine, the skirts of reliables the skirts of which were edged with blue. Mrs. F. J. Fry, a sister of the bride, wore a TAMPS, LAMP GOODS & OIL. dress of pink satin, and a bonnet of white crape, with forget-me-nots and ostrich feather. Another friend of the bride wore a white grenadine muslin dress, trimmed with pink, and a white and pink bonnet, with flowers to match. These fashionable dresses were in striking contrast with those worn by ladies present who still adhere to the ancient customs of the Friends this matter. The ceremony on this occasion as in strict accordance with the long-establishd usages of the Friends.
